Public Transport Family Fun Day

Information About Public Buses

Busses are a road based transport that takes passengers from one bus stop to another along the same route. If there is another route that needs to be taken by the passenger then another numbered bus must be used.

Why should you travel on buses?

- Great opportunity to be social
- Come together as a community
- Healthy way to be active
- Less road congestion and pollution
- Won't be no need for building so many car parks
- Saves the oil supply

Public Transport Activities

Some of the activities that will be happening on the day include the following:

- Go Card Workshop (to show families how to use the go card machine at the bus stations)
- Capture The Flag (each family will get a map of the bus stops and train stations and they have to find all the coloured flags at each stop on there map. This will show families how to get on and off buses and trains and use the time tables)
- Transport Bingo (each family has a list of things that they must complete and the first family to complete 5 of things on the list which are about public transport)
- Transport swapping (to show families how to swap transport if they get on a bus and it doesn't go all the way to where they need to go and there is a train station near by that does then they need to know how to get on it)

Information About Public Trains

Trains are a rail based transport that takes passengers from one train station to another along the one line. If there is no stop along that line then the passenger may need to switch to a bus.

Why should you travel on trains?

- Great opportunity to be social
- Come together as a community
- Healthy way to be active
- Less road congestion and pollution
- Won't be no need for extra roads
- Saves the oil supply
